Few House Republicans defended Trump's conduct as they opposed his second impeachment

House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy (R-Calif.) said President Trump “bears responsibility for Wednesday’s attack on Congress by mob rioters” and faulted him for not immediately denouncing the violence “when he saw what was unfolding.”

McCarthy endorsed a resolution to censure Trump but said impeaching the president a second time would only “further fan the flames of partisan division.”

“Instead, we must unite once again as Americans,” McCarthy said at the start of a floor debate that stretched all afternoon. “I understand, for some, this call for unity may ring hollow.”

McCarthy voted last week – just hours after the mob had finally been cleared from the Capitol – in favor of rejecting the will of more than 10 million voters in Arizona and Pennsylvania to play along with Trump’s baseless claims of widespread election fraud in those states.

Ultimately, with 10 Republicans in support, the House voted 232 to 197 to impeach the president for inciting a riot with false claims of a stolen election that led to the storming of their building and five deaths. Most of those 197 Republicans opted not to speak during the floor debate, quietly casting their votes while avoiding television cameras. One of them, Rep. Michael McCaul (R-Tex.), shed some light on why in a statement: “I truly fear there may be more facts that come to light in the future that will put me on the wrong side of this debate.”

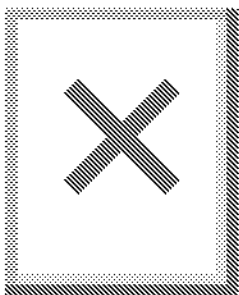

Among those who did rise to speak against impeachment, few offered a rousing defense of Trump. Rep. Darrell Issa (R-Calif.) noted on Wednesday that, while campaigning for Sen. Marco Rubio (R-Fla.) during the GOP presidential primaries in 2016, he had accused Trump of being erratic. “I don’t think that’s being debated here today: We all know that’s true,” Issa said. “What’s being debated is whether, with 167 hours left until he leaves office, he is a clear and present danger, and he clearly isn’t. The president has acted substantially the same for four years.”

It was a marked contrast to the floor debate 13 months earlier when many Republicans unabashedly defended the propriety of his efforts to pressure Ukraine’s president to announce an investigation of Joe Biden and to put a hold on military assistance to Kyiv while doing so.

A significant chunk of the GOP speakers largely ignored Trump’s behavior and focused instead on critiquing the timing of the vote, the language of the resolution and the lack of a traditional process for bringing it to the floor. Other members rationalized their opposition to impeachment by attacking their Democratic counterparts for not more forcefully condemning violent street protests last summer after the killing of George Floyd in police custody.

“The president of the United States deserves universal condemnation for what was clearly, in my opinion, impeachable conduct: Pressuring the vice president to violate his oath,” said Rep. Chip Roy (R-Tex.). “Unfortunately, my Democratic colleagues drafted articles that I believe are flawed and unsupportable, focusing on the legal terms of incitement and insurrection.”

In December 2019, not a single House Republican broke ranks. Only Sen. Mitt Romney (R-Utah) supported removing Trump after the trial on the other side of the Capitol. The 10 Republicans who backed impeachment this time were Reps. Peter Meijer (Mich.), Anthony Gonzalez (Ohio), Tom Rice (S.C.), David Valadao (Calif.) Liz Cheney (Wyo.), John Katko (N.Y.), Fred Upton (Mich.), Adam Kinzinger (Ill.), Jaime Herrera Beutler and Dan Newhouse (Wash.).

Quote of the day

"Fear is our enemy," said Herrera Beutler. "My vote to impeach our sitting president is not a fear-based decision. I am not choosing a side.

I'm choosing truth. It's the only way to defeat fear."
"These articles of impeachment are flawed, but I will not use process as an excuse.

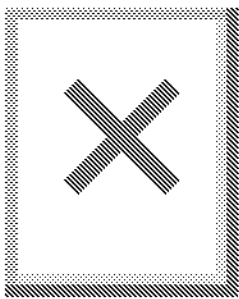

There is no excuse for President Trump's actions," Newhouse said. "We are all responsible. My colleagues are responsible for not condemning rioters this past year. but argued that it did not rise to the level of incitement and therefore was not impeachable. Others, including myself, are responsible for not speaking out sooner before the president misinformed and inflamed a violent mob who tore down the American flag and brutally beat Capitol Police officers."

"If we impeached every politician who gave a fiery speech to a crowd of partisans, this Capitol would be deserted," he said. "Now, he also threatened to oppose candidates in future elections. And by the way, that was directed at Republicans like me who'd resolved to uphold the constitutional process and protect the electoral college. Well, so what? That's called politics!"

To be sure, a segment of stalwart allies rallied to Trump's defense. "Instead of stopping the Trump train, his movement will grow stronger, for you will have made him a martyr," said Rep. Andy Biggs (R-Ariz.), the head of the Freedom Caucus and a backer of the "Stop the Steal" effort that culminated in the Jan. 6 rally.

Rep. Doug LaMalfa (R-Calif.) even went so far as to say that the violence at the Capitol was just a pretext to conceal why Democrats really were trying to get rid of Trump on his way out the door. "You hate him because he is pro-life," LaMalfa said. "You hate him for Israel. You hate him for defending our borders. ... You hate him for putting America first."

Rep. Glenn Grothman (R-Wis.) faulted Democrats for not trying to understand what motivated so many Trump supporters to descend on Washington in the first place. “He did say he wanted people to ‘fight like hell or we’re not going to have a country anymore,’ but that’s obviously standard hyperbole,” said Grothman. “You don’t understand why they were here. They’re scared to death we’re going to go back to the days without Donald Trump, of hundreds of thousands of people crossing this border every month. ... They’re scared to death that nobody else will fight the cancel culture as we head towards an era when some things can’t be said. They’re scared to death that the majority party got here by teaming up with Black Lives Matter.”

Democrats unanimously supported Trump’s second impeachment. Last time, two members voted no (Jeff Van Drew and Collin Peterson) while a third voted present (Tulsi Gabbard). Van Drew switched parties, Peterson lost and Gabbard retired.

Freshman Rep. Cori Bush (D-Mo.) said failing “to remove a white supremacist president who incited a white supremacist insurrection” would send a terrible message to predominantly Black communities like the one she represents in St. Louis. “The 117th Congress must understand that we have a mandate to legislate in defense of Black lives,” she said. “The first step in that process is to root out white supremacy starting with impeaching the white supremacist in chief.”

Thirteen months ago, Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) shushed a group of Democrats who started to cheer after the House passed the impeachment resolution. No one cheered Wednesday. In large part, this was because no one felt like celebrating. “Every one of us in this room right now could have died,” explained Rep. Jamie Raskin (D-Md.), the author of the article of impeachment.

Rep. Jim McGovern (D-Mass.), the chairman of the Rules Committee, noted that the debate was unfolding “at an actual crime scene.” He added: “The cause of this violence resides at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.”

In a reminder of the trauma, members of the National Guard had spent the night sleeping in the halls of the Capitol. The temple of democracy is being used as a barracks for the first time since the Civil War.

After the first impeachment, Pelosi was mocked for using several pens to sign the resolution during the engrossment ceremony and then handing them out to members of her conference. This time, the speaker used only one pen.

Before she signed the document, Pelosi spoke to reporters from behind a lectern that one of the rioters had carried out of the House chamber. Adam Johnson, a Florida man, has been charged with theft of government property in connection with taking the lectern. It was discovered this week on the Senate side of the complex, where it had been discarded, and returned on Wednesday.

“Today, in a bipartisan way, the House demonstrated that no one is above the law, not even the president of the United States,” Pelosi said, “that Donald Trump is a clear and present danger to our country and that, once again, we honor that oath of office to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, so help us God.”

What's next for impeachment

Mitch McConnell says he'll consider voting to convict Trump but refuses to bring back the Senate.

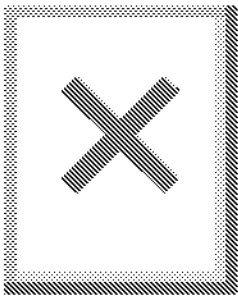

“I have not made a final decision on how I will vote and I intend to listen to the legal arguments when they are presented to the Senate,” the Republican leader said in a message to his colleagues. “McConnell also pressed pause on an impeachment trial that would occur before Trump leaves the White House on Jan. 20,” Seung Min Kim and Paul Kane report. “His office informed aides to Senate Minority Leader Charles E. Schumer (D-N.Y.) earlier Wednesday that he would not agree to immediately reconvene the Senate this week ... McConnell is poised to remain majority leader until at least Jan. 22, when election results from the two Senate runoff races in Georgia will be certified ... McConnell and Schumer could jointly work out the rules that would govern Trump’s second impeachment trial, although once Democrats formally take the majority, Schumer and his ranks could formalize a rules package on a party-line vote.”

Senior GOP officials say it's too early to determine whether the required 17 of 50 Republicans in the new Senate would vote to punish Trump. In addition to Sens. Mitt Romney (Utah), Ben Sasse (Neb.), Lisa Murkowski (Alaska), and Pat Toomey (Pa.), others have directly criticized Trump for his role in inciting the riot, including Richard Burr (N.C.) and Rob Portman (Ohio).

Whether an official can be impeached after leaving office has not been settled by the courts, and constitutional scholars do not agree. But there are historical precedents: The impeachments of Tennessee Sen. William Blount in 1797 and Secretary of War William Belknap in 1876 both occurred after they were no longer in office. (Gillian Brockell)

Another open legal question is whether the chief justice or the vice president will preside over a trial, Robert Barnes reports. A Supreme Court spokeswoman declined to comment about whether Chief Justice John Roberts has been in contact with Senate leaders about the second trial. The Constitution says “when the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside.” But Trump will no longer be “the president” after Jan. 20. That could mean that Vice President-elect Kamala Harris, in her new role as president of the Senate, would preside. Michael Gerhardt, a University of North Carolina law professor who wrote a book on impeachment, thinks it will be up to the majority leader and parliamentarian.

Trump's final days

The lame-duck president is increasingly isolated, sullen and vengeful.

“Trump’s inner circle is shrinking, offices in his White House are emptying, and the president is lashing out at some of those who remain. He is angry that his allies have not mounted a more forceful defense of his incitement of the mob,” Philip Rucker, Josh Dawsey and Ashley Parker report. “Though Trump has been exceptionally furious with Vice President Pence, his relationship with lawyer Rudolph W. Giuliani, one of his most steadfast defenders, is also fracturing ...

Trump has instructed aides not to pay Giuliani’s legal fees, two officials said, and has demanded that he personally approve any reimbursements for the expenses Giuliani incurred while traveling on the president’s behalf to challenge election results in key states. They said Trump has privately expressed concern with some of Giuliani’s moves and did not appreciate a demand from Giuliani for $20,000 a day in fees for his work attempting to overturn the election. ...

“Minutes after the House voted to impeach him for a second time, Trump held a private ceremony in the Oval Office to award the National Medal of Arts to country singer Toby Keith ... The White House released a video Wednesday evening featuring Trump seated behind the Resolute desk in the Oval Office pleading with supporters not to engage in further violence. ... A senior administration official said [son-in-law Jared] Kushner, the president’s daughter Ivanka Trump, Deputy Chief of Staff Dan Scavino and Pence persuaded Trump to film the video, telling him it could boost support among weak Republicans. They asked him not to mention impeachment, and he didn’t.

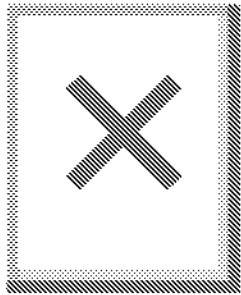

"Still, in a stark illustration of Trump’s isolation, the White House did not mount a vigorous defense Wednesday as House members debated his fitness for office ... The president’s aides did not blast out talking points to allies. His press secretary did not hold a briefing with reporters. His advisers did not do television interviews from the White House’s North Lawn. His lawyers and legislative affairs staffers did not whip votes or seek to persuade lawmakers to vote against impeachment. This is both because there was no organized campaign to block impeachment and because many of his aides believe Trump’s incitement of the riot was too odious to defend. White House Counsel Pat Cipollone, who was central to the president's defense in his first impeachment a year ago, told other staffers to make sure word got out that he was not involved in defending Trump this time, according to one aide. ...

"Other than family members, the president is mainly talking to [Chief of Staff Mark] Meadows, Scavino, senior policy adviser Stephen Miller and personnel director Johnny McEntee. Hope Hicks, counselor to the president and long one of his closest confidantes, has been checked out for some time, according to people familiar with her status. ... Several aides laid blame for the situation not only on Trump but also on Meadows, because the chief of staff indulged Trump's delusion that the election was rigged and fed him misinformation about alleged voter fraud. 'He is the one who kept bringing kook after kook after kook in there to talk to him,' one adviser said. In the days after Twitter banned Trump from its platform, McEntee pushed the president to migrate to other social media sites, such as Parler. But Kushner and Scavino pushed back and stopped the president from joining the fringe platform."

“National Guard forces from a growing list of states moved into positions around Washington on Wednesday as authorities scrambled to understand the extent of threats surrounding Biden’s inauguration and prevent a repeat of last week’s deadly insurrection,” Missy Ryan, Alex Horton, Matt Zapotosky and Dan Lamothe report. “Federal officials led tabletop exercises to rehearse inauguration security and strengthen coordination ... Authorities have been operating in a heightened state of alert as the Secret Service orchestrates inauguration security and the FBI runs down possible threats in D.C. and state capitals. On Wednesday, FBI Director Christopher A. Wray briefed local law enforcement across the country about the ‘state of play,’ and the agency moved to establish new command posts nationwide. Senior FBI and Secret Service officials also briefed Biden ...

“Officials and analysts monitoring online posts and message threads said some far-right groups appeared to be backing down from plans to come to Washington in coming days, at least in part owing to the National Guard and law enforcement presence. ... The consensus seemed to be that while the risk of violence may be lower in Washington in coming days, state capitals remain vulnerable. Fearing fresh rounds of violence this weekend, more governors on Wednesday announced that they were calling up National Guard troops to help maintain security. ... The U.S. Marshals Service, part of the Justice Department, plans to deputize between 3,000 and 4,000 local law enforcement officers from across the country who — at the request of D.C. police, will help with security for the inauguration.”

The sedition task force continues to round up suspects, including police officers, a firefighter and a transit worker.

"Federal authorities announced several new charges Wednesday against people allegedly involved in last week's riot at the Capitol, including a man said to have worn a pro-Nazi sweatshirt, a five-time Olympic medalist and two police officers from southwest Virginia," Spencer Hsu, Rachel Weiner and Hannah Knowles.

"Many of the those charged in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia on Wednesday face misdemeanors and were released without bond, with prosecutors asking only that they be temporarily barred from Washington. ... Among those arrested and released Wednesday were Thomas Robertson, 47, and Jacob Fracker, 29, of Rocky Mount, Va., both officers with the Rocky Mount Police Department. They have been placed on administrative leave.

"Robert Keith Packer, 56, of Newport News, Va., was identified by an acquaintance and other news outlets; several photographs taken at the Capitol appear to show him wearing a sweatshirt that read 'Camp Auschwitz' ... Klete Keller, a five-time Olympic medalist in swimming, was charged just days after he was spotted on video wearing a Team USA jacket in the Capitol Rotunda."

"An indictment unsealed against Douglas A. Jensen, 41, accuses the Des Moines resident of leading a charge of protesters against Capitol Police Officer Eugene Goodman. In a viral video, Goodman is seen ... trying to hold back dozens of rioters, twice retreating up a flight of stairs. Police experts say he wasn't fleeing, but luring the mob away from the Senate chambers, where lawmakers were sheltering. ‘He wanted to have his T-shirt seen on video so that ‘Q’ could ‘get the credit,’” FBI Special Agent Julie Williams wrote of Jensen in an arrest affidavit.”

- “FBI inspectors who evaluated the domestic terrorism program in the bureau’s Washington field office two years ago gave it a ‘failing grade,’ meaning it was considered both ineffective and inefficient, two former FBI officials familiar with the matter said,” per NBC News. “The inspection — akin to an internal audit — found that mechanisms to collect, analyze and share threat intelligence were lacking ... The evaluation also criticized the Washington field office’s procedures for sharing intelligence with other police agencies, including the U.S. Capitol Police.”
- Neither acting attorney general Jeff Rosen nor Wray, the FBI, director has appeared at the type of high-profile news conference that typically marks a major criminal investigation. “In the weeks leading up to the riot, Mr. Trump pressured Mr. Rosen to find more evidence of election fraud,” the Times reports. “He fears that being fired now would destabilize the Justice Department.”
- “The U.S. military had its own intelligence that anticipated election-related unrest from individuals who viewed the presidential election as fraudulent — the same individuals who stormed the Capitol — according to an internal Defense Department intelligence assessment,” per the Intercept.

The Capitol siege played out as a QAnon fantasy made real.

“The ‘#Storm’ envisioned on far-right message boards had arrived. And two women who had died in the rampage — both QAnon devotees — had become what some were calling the first martyrs of the cause,” Drew Harwell, Isaac Stanley-Becker, Razzan Nakhlawi and Craig Timberg report. “The failed insurrection illustrated how the paranoid conspiracy theory QAnon has radicalized Americans, reshaped the Republican Party and gained a forceful grip on right-wing belief. ... A man in a ‘Q’ T-shirt led the breach ... while a shirtless, fur-clad believer known as the ‘Q Shaman’ posed for photographers in the Senate chamber. ... The theory’s namesake — a top-secret government messenger of pro-Trump prophecies — has largely vanished, posting nothing in the past 35 days and only five times since Trump’s election loss. ... [But] the fervent online organizing seen ahead of last week’s assault has begun building again. A QAnon group on Gab has grown by more than 40,000 members since the failed insurrection.”

The coronavirus

The outbreak among lawmakers shows one vaccine dose may not be enough.

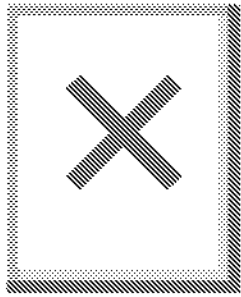

The U.S. reported 4,254 covid-19 deaths on Wednesday, and 225,277 new cases, per The Post's tracker. Daily reported deaths rose 24.9 percent over the last week, with Tuesday marking a record high number of deaths at 4,200.

“Three members of Congress may have contracted the coronavirus while sheltering in a crowded room as a pro-Trump mob stormed the Capitol, testing positive shortly after getting a first dose of the coronavirus vaccine,” Ben Guarino reports. “Those positive tests do not mean the vaccines were faulty, experts said, noting that immune protection takes more than a week to kick in. Both the Pfizer and Moderna vaccines that are available to Americans require two doses for full protection; a single dose is not as effective as both. ‘Early protection against covid-19 may occur from about 12 days after dose one,’ said Naor Bar-Zeev, an infectious diseases physician and epidemiologist at Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. ... Even though the vaccines may protect people from showing symptoms, those vaccinated could remain susceptible to infection, he said.”

The transition

In a speech tonight, Biden will outline an economic stimulus proposal.

“Biden officials are likely to include the expansion of an existing tax credit for children as part of a relief package that will also include $2,000 stimulus payments, unemployment benefits and other assistance for the ailing economy — as well as money to fight the coronavirus pandemic and increase vaccine distribution,” Jeff Stein and Erica Werner report. “Biden transition officials have not disclosed the overall price tag of the package, but it is expected to be more than $1 trillion. While a final decision has not been made, Biden is expected to push for a proposal similar to his campaign pledge to provide $300 per month to American households for every child under 6, as well as $250 per month for every child between the ages of 6 and 17. That would amount to $3,600 per year for families with one young child and $3,000 per year for families with older children. Biden is also likely to seek to extend the existing child benefit to millions of poor families currently shut out of the program.”

The number of new unemployment claims filed last week jumped by 181,000 the week before to 965,000, the largest increase since the beginning of the pandemic. An additional 284,000 claims were filed for the Pandemic Unemployment Assistance, the insurance for gig and self-employed workers. (Eli Rosenberg)

Harris is making history. What will she do with it?

“Harris, 56, has yet to offer any grand vision of what kind of vice president she hopes to be, although few vice presidents have by Inauguration Day,” Chelsea Janes reports. “People familiar with her role in the transition say that loyalty is Harris’s primary goal. ... The most consistent through line of her political career has been a commitment to opening the doors of American leadership to more people like her. ... She chose a chief of staff, communications director, press secretary, and head of policy who are all women of color.”

For her friends and allies, the Capitol attacks prompted fresh fears. “That Harris is not only Black, but also a woman and a daughter of immigrants, combine to make her a unique focus of racist and misogynistic animus — a symbol of a changing America that white supremacists loath to see,” Janes reports.

Unlike many federal lawmakers, who treat D.C. more like a business shop than a second home, Harris has traversed the lines that separate the many versions of the nation’s capital: Black and immigrant and White Washington; poor and rich Washington; official Washington and the “real” Washington. Once she calls the Naval Observatory home, her friends expect her to become even more engaged in the city’s life. (Sydney Trent)

Harris’s father, who has chosen to be in the background as his daughter’s political career advanced, lives in D.C., but it is unclear if he will attend the inauguration. At

82, the emeritus Stanford professor has shown no desire for the attention or celebrity that comes with his daughter's ascent. (Robert Samuels)

Biden is working on a plan to avoid a midterm shellacking.

"In preparation for the 2022 midterms, the president-elect is fusing his political operation with the Democratic National Committee. He is also considering sending a top communications staffer — among those discussed are top campaign spokespeople Andrew Bates and T.J. Ducklo — to the DNC for the next several months as an embled before that person heads to the White House themselves. The idea is to help ensure the DNC is integral to the Biden operation," Politico reports.

Dozens of people on FBI terrorist watch list came to D.C. the day of Capitol riot

Supporters of President Trump mob the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6. (Evelyn Hockstein/For The Washington Post)

Spencer S. Hsu and
Marissa J. Lang

By Jan. 14, 2021 at 2:34 p.m. EST

Dozens of people on a terrorist watch list were in Washington for pro-Trump events Jan. 6, a day that ended in a chaotic crime rampage when a violent mob stormed the U.S. Capitol, according to people familiar with evidence gathered in the FBI's investigation. The majority of the watchlisted individuals in Washington that day are suspected white supremacists whose past conduct so alarmed investigators that their names had been previously entered into the national Terrorist Screening Database, or TSDB, a massive set of names flagged as potential security risks, these people said. The watch list is larger and separate from the “no-fly” list the government maintains to prevent terrorism suspects from boarding airplanes, and those listed are not automatically barred from any public or commercial spaces, current and former officials said.

The presence of so many watch-listed individuals in one place — without more robust security measures to protect the public — is another example of the intelligence failures preceding last week’s assault that sent lawmakers running for their lives and left five others dead, some current and former law enforcement officials argued. The revelation follows a Washington Post report earlier this week detailing the FBI’s failure to act aggressively on an internal intelligence report of Internet discussions about plans to attack Congress, smash windows, break down doors and “get violent . . . go there ready for war.”

FBI report warned in advance of ‘war’ at the Capitol

Other current and former officials said the presence of those individuals is an unsurprising consequence of having thousands of fervent Trump supporters gathered for what was billed as a final chance to voice opposition to Joe Biden’s certification as the next president. Still, the revelation underscores the limitations of such watch lists. Although they are meant to improve information gathering and sharing among investigative agencies, they are far from a foolproof means of detecting threats ahead of time.

Since its creation, the terrorist watch list, which is maintained by the FBI, has grown to include hundreds of thousands of names. Placing someone’s name on the watch list does not mean they will be watched all of the time, or even much of the time, for reasons of both practicality and fairness, but it can alert different parts of the government, such as border agents or state police, to look more closely at certain individuals they encounter. It’s unclear whether any of the dozens of individuals already arrested for alleged crimes at the Capitol are on the terrorist watch list.

“The U.S. Government is committed to protecting the United States from terrorist threats and attacks and seeks to do this in a manner that protects the freedoms, privacy and civil rights and liberties of U.S. persons and other individuals with rights under U.S. law,” a U.S. official said, adding that because of security concerns, the government has a policy of neither confirming nor denying a person's watch list status.

The FBI declined to comment.

Trump is isolated and angry at aides for failing to defend him as he is impeached again

The riot's political aftershocks led the House of Representatives on Wednesday to impeach President Trump for allegedly inciting the violence — his second impeachment in a single four-year term — and may have significant consequences within law enforcement and national security agencies.

Inside the FBI and the Department of Homeland Security, officials are grappling with thorny questions about race, terrorism and free-speech rights, as some investigators question whether more could have been done to prevent last week's violence.

While some federal officials think the government should more aggressively investigate domestic terrorism and extremists, others are concerned the FBI, DHS and other agencies may overreact to the recent violence by going too far in surveilling First Amendment activity like online discussions.

Several law enforcement officials said they are shocked by the backgrounds of some individuals under investigation in connection with the Capitol riot, a pool of suspects that includes current and former law enforcement and military personnel as well as senior business executives and middle-aged business owners.

"I can't believe some of the people I'm seeing," one official said.

The TSDB, often referred to within government as simply "the watch list," is overseen by the FBI's Terrorist Screening Center, which was created in the wake of the 9/11 attacks carried out by al-Qaeda. The watch list can be used as both an investigative and early warning tool, but its primary purpose is to help various government agencies keep abreast of what individuals seen as potential risks are doing and where they travel, according to people familiar with the work who, like others, spoke on the condition of anonymity because the work is sensitive.

Often that can be done as a “silent hit,” meaning if someone on the watch list is stopped for speeding, that information is typically entered into the database without the individual or even the officer who wrote the ticket ever knowing, one person said. After the 2013 Boston Marathon bombing, for instance, the FBI quickly searched a similar database to see which people on it had recently traveled to that city or raised other suspicions about possible involvement.

Before the Jan. 6 gathering of pro-Trump protesters, FBI agents visited a number of suspected extremists and advised them against traveling to the nation’s capital. Many complied, but according to people familiar with the sprawling investigation, dozens of others, whose names appear in the terrorist watch list, apparently attended, based on information reviewed by the FBI.

FBI investigating whether some rioters aimed to kill or capture lawmakers

Separately, while the FBI is hunting hundreds of rioting suspects who have dispersed back to their hometowns, federal agents are increasingly focused on alleged leaders, members, and supporters of the Proud Boys, a male-chauvinist group with ties to white nationalism, these people said.

The Proud Boys participated in last week’s protests, and FBI agents are taking a close look at what roles, if any, their adherents may have had in organizing, directing or carrying out violence, according to people familiar with the matter.

The group’s chairman, Enrique Tarrio, had planned to attend Trump’s Jan. 6 rally but was arrested when he arrived in D.C. and charged with misdemeanor destruction of property in connection with the burning of a Black Lives Matter banner taken from a Black church during an earlier protest in Washington. He is also accused of felony possession of two extended gun magazines.

Tarrio told The Post on Wednesday that his group did not organize the Capitol siege. “If they think we were organizing going into the Capitol, they’re going to be sadly mistaken,” he said. “Our plan was to stay together as a group and just enjoy the day. We weren’t going to do a night march, anything like that. That’s it as far as our day.”

Proud Boys leader Henry “Enrique” Tarrio, seen here during a rally in Portland, Ore., last year, was arrested in D.C. earlier this month. (Allison Dinner/AP)

Tarrio said he’s actively discouraging members from attending planned armed marches scheduled Sunday, and the Million Militia March next week when Biden is inaugurated. Proud Boys, he said, are on a “rally freeze and will not be organizing any events for the next month or so.”

It is unclear how many Proud Boys devotees will abide by the freeze, or if such a shutdown might lessen the FBI’s interest in the group. Even before the Jan. 6 riot, federal and local investigators were working to understand the group’s plans, goals and activities. Privately, some federal law enforcement officials have described the group as roughly equivalent to a nascent street gang that has garnered an unusual degree of national attention, in part because Trump mentioned them specifically during one of his televised debates with Biden during the campaign. Other officials have expressed concern that the group may be growing rapidly into something more dangerous and directed.

The FBI has already arrested dozens of accused rioters, and officials have pledged that in cases of the most egregious conduct, they will seek to file tough, rarely used charges like seditious conspiracy, which carries a potential 20-year prison sentence.

The bureau continues to face blowback over its handling of a Jan. 5 internal report warning of discussions of violence at Congress the next day. Steven M. D'Antuono, the head of the FBI's Washington Field Office, claimed in the days after the riot that the bureau did not have intelligence ahead of time indicating the rally would be anything other than a peaceful demonstration.

The Jan. 5 FBI report, written by the bureau's office in Norfolk, and reviewed by The Post, shows that was not the case, and the Justice Department took other steps indicating officials were at least somewhat concerned about possible violence the next day. The Bureau of Prisons sent 100 officers to D.C. to supplement security at the Justice Department building, an unusual move similar to what the department did in June to respond to civil unrest stemming from racial justice protests.

Mindful of the criticism that law enforcement took a heavy-handed, all-hands-on-deck approach to Black Lives Matters protests in D.C. in the spring and summer, Justice Department officials deferred to the Capitol Police to defend their building and lawmakers there. Some former officials have questioned whether the FBI and Justice Department should have done more.

"It would not have been enough for the bureau simply to share information, if it did so, with state and local law enforcement or federal partner agencies," said David Laufman, a former Justice Department national security official. "It was the bureau's responsibility to quarterback a coordinated federal response as the crisis was unfolding and in the days thereafter. And it's presently not clear to what extent the FBI asserted itself in that fashion during the exigencies of January 6 and in the immediate aftermath."

NATIONAL ISSUES

Wray Security Briefing: OPA – Director Wray and other officials involved in inaugural security briefed Vice President Pence. The director discussed both the concerning threat stream about upcoming events surrounding the inaugural and the FBI's aggressive investigation into events at the U.S. Capitol last week. C-SPAN posted video of the remarks: <https://www.c-span.org/video/?507986-1/vice-president-pence-receives-security-briefing-ahead-inauguration>

Inaugural: OPA – Several outlets asked about the FBI's role in the inauguration and other related events. OPA provided the following statement after review by CTD and CIRG: "The Presidential Inauguration is a National Special Security Event involving multiple agencies. The FBI is the lead federal agency for crisis management, counterterrorism, and intelligence analysis. As we do every four years, the FBI has been planning and coordinating with the U.S. Secret Service, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the military and other law enforcement partners for months. In keeping with our standard practice, we will not release the exact number of FBI personnel who will be involved, but it will include numerous FBI special agents, analysts, specialized teams, and support staff, many of whom are already in place. The FBI's National Crisis Coordination Center was established at FBI Headquarters and a command post was initiated at the Washington Field Office to provide a centralized location for gathering intelligence, assessing potential threats, coordinating on investigations, and providing any additional resources needed. Command posts will also be set up in all 56 FBI field offices. As always, the FBI is working in close coordination with its law enforcement and intelligence partners in order to ensure the safety of the event."

Proud Boys: OPA – Bloomberg asked if the Proud Boys and some other groups are planning to "stand down" and not participate in violent action around the inauguration. OPA declined to comment.

Total Arrests: OPA – Multiple outlets inquired about specific individuals arrested and the total number of arrests in relation to the violence at the U.S. Capitol. OPA referred reporters to the Department of Justice webpage that provides updated arrest and charging information.
<https://www.justice.gov/opa/investigations-regarding-violence-capitol>.

Suspicious Visitors to U.S. Capitol: OPA – Continued interest in claims that Republican members of Congress provided access to the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 5 through tours. OPA declined comment and directed reporters to the U.S. Capitol Police.

Digital Tips Received: OPA – Multiple outlets asked about the number of tips the FBI has received. OPA advised that more than 126,000 digital tips have been received from the public about the violence at the U.S. Capitol.

Capitol Riot Art Crime: OPA – CNN asked if the FBI's Art Crime Team has been engaged in the Capitol violence investigation. In coordination with WFO and the Art Crime Team, OPA provided the following statement: "The FBI Washington Field Office and the Art Crime Team are fully engaged in investigating the potential theft and defacement that occurred in the U.S. Capitol during the rioting on January 6. The Capitol and all of the valuable historic artifacts held within are symbols of our democracy and their vandalism will not be tolerated. As such, the FBI has already arrested an individual alleged to have stolen the lectern used by the Speaker of the House. Because this is an ongoing investigative matter, we cannot comment further.”

No-Fly List: OPA – Received additional requests for information about the No-Fly List and if those involved in the violence at the Capitol were added. OPA advised: “If an individual is deemed to be an immediate threat to other airline passengers or to the aircraft, the agencies and local law enforcement at the airport have jurisdiction to detain or arrest the individual, which would effectively prevent them from flying. Separately, the FBI will continue to nominate predicated subjects to the federal terrorism watchlist, as appropriate, in accordance with existing laws and policies. The TSC will continue to evaluate all nominations to the watchlist to ensure they meet the required criteria for watch listing.” OPA directed the reporter to <https://www.fbi.gov/wanted/capitol-violence> for previous statements.

Dating Apps: OPA – The Washington Post asked if there was an uptick in tips using location-based dating apps to find potential insurrectionists. OPA advised the FBI does not comment on information or specific tips we may receive from the public and provided information about the FBI’s request for digital media tips.

Online Claims: OPA – The AP sought guidance on a popular video that is spreading online claiming, “the FBI has just cleared President Donald Trump of any guilt, any connection to the Jan. 6 attack on our state Capitol.” OPA directed the reporter to the FBI’s Capitol violence landing page at <https://www.fbi.gov/wanted/capitol-violence>.

New Section: OPA – The editor-in-chief of SpyTalk asked if the WMDD had opened a new section to pursue reports of right-wing extremists’ efforts to acquire CBRN materials. OPA declined to comment on the purported section and provided the reporter with general background on the WMDD mission.

OIG Sexual Harassment Investigative Summary: OPA – The Daily Caller asked for comment about an OIG Investigative Summary published today that found an FBI ASAC engaged in unwanted physical sexual contact with three FBI employees, made offensive sexual comments to FBI employees, and consumed alcohol and provided alcohol to others while on duty in a federal building. OPA provided the following statement: “The FBI has zero tolerance for any form of sexual harassment or sexual misconduct. And we expect our employees—regardless of rank or title—to foster a workplace that’s respectful, professional, and free from offensive, inappropriate, or harassing behavior. While we are limited in what we can say on an ongoing matter, we assure both the FBI workforce and the public we are seriously reviewing the allegations raised in the OIG’s report and will take all appropriate measures to address any misconduct.”

DarkMarket Takedown: OPA – Following a German press release announcing the takedown of a major illegal Dark Net marketplace called DarkMarket, an online security publication asked for a comment on the FBI’s role in the operation. In coordination with JCODE and CID, OPA provided the following statement: “The successful takedown of the illegal marketplace DarkMarket is the result of a strong and continuing partnership between the FBI and our domestic and foreign law enforcement partners. This ongoing global effort has been influential in dismantling criminal enterprises attempting to hide on the Dark Web and shows that those operating on the Dark Web are not above the law.”

COVID Vaccine Cargo Theft: OPA – The Bureau of Investigative Journalism asked how the FBI plans to mitigate the threat of vaccine cargo theft at U.S. airports. In coordination with CID, OPA provided the following statement: “The FBI, in coordination with federal, state, and local agencies and private sector partners, is on high alert for any threats to the production and shipment of COVID-19 vaccines. The FBI stands ready to investigate reports of potential threats to the vaccine supply chain and will dedicate resources and expertise in response to attempts to steal or disrupt vaccine shipments.”

Cyber Strategy Follow-up: OPA – DAD Ugoretz of the Cyber Division provided an interview to CyberScoop looking back over the Cyber Division's efforts in 2020 and discussing the FBI's cyber posture moving into 2021. OPA also gave CyberScoop exclusive information about AD Gorham's upcoming retirement.

Insider Threat: OPA – A reporter interviewed Cyber SC Frigm and Counterintelligence A/SC Rozhavsky about how businesses can work with the FBI on insider threat problems. The interview included the importance of companies establishing relationships with their local FBI offices before they experience any problems. A story will be posted later this month on the Dark Reading website, which is targeted at information security officials.

Cannon and incoming SAC Ramsey are doing a series of interviews today with all the Portland-based TV stations plus the Oregonian, Oregon Public Broadcasting, and the Salem Statesman Journal.

Salt Lake City – ASAC Fitzgibbons did interviews with 13 media outlets in Salt Lake City about possible planned protests in Utah. He discussed the FBI’s posture, emphasized that the FBI does not police ideology, and called for the public to submit tips. Fitzgibbons also condemned the violence in D.C. and discussed how FBI Salt Lake City is working with federal prosecutors to bring appropriate charges.

San Juan – Received media calls to confirm the FBI's involvement in law enforcement activity with the Police of Puerto Rico in various locations across the AOR. Agents deployed in support of a large operation by the Police of Puerto Rico to impact areas with high violent crime. This is in direct response to the killing of three police officers Monday afternoon. During one of the many interventions today, there was a brief fire exchange between police and two subjects. One of the subjects is under arrest while the other is at large. Media also wanted to confirm the exchange of gunfire. PAO confirmed FBI support of the police operation and declined further comment.

Seattle – The local ABC affiliate interviewed ASAC Nichols about the local perspective on the Capitol violence. Nichols used OPA-provided talking points, highlighted the FBI Seattle command post, and urged the public to provide information through the tip line.

THIS DOCUMENT MAY NOT BE DISSEMINATED OUTSIDE U.S. LAW ENFORCEMENT CHANNELS WITHOUT FBI HQ APPROVAL.

(U) National Crisis Coordination Center Update: Preventing Violence and Criminal Activity January 2021

1700 14 JANUARY 2021

(U) ~~(LSS)~~ This update was compiled by the Joint Inter-Agency National Crisis Coordination Center in the FBI Strategic Information Operations Center. Information is accurate as of 2000 EST on 14 January 2021. The following agencies contributed to the development of this SITREP: ATF, DEA, DOD, DOJ, DHS, US Park Police, and USMS. Responses provided after the cut-off time will be included in the next SITREP.

(U) The information marked (U//~~LES~~) in this document is the property of the FBI and may be classified within the Federal Government (and its contractor), U.S. intelligence, law enforcement, public safety or protection officials, and individuals with a need to know. Distribution beyond these entities without FBI authorization is prohibited. Recipients should be advised to ensure this information is stored and/or deleted in a manner that precludes unauthorized access. Information bearing the (U//~~LES~~) mark may not be used in legal proceedings without further authorization from the originating agency. Recipients are prohibited from subsequently posting the information marked (U//~~LES~~) on a website or an unclassified network.

(U//~~LES~~) Under FBI policy and federal law, no investigative activity may be based solely on First Amendment activity. The FBI does not investigate, collect, or maintain information on U.S. persons solely for the purpose of monitoring activities protected by the First Amendment. Moreover, the FBI will maintain no record describing how an individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment unless expressly authorized by statute or by the individual about whom the record is maintained or unless pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement search. Privacy Act of 1974, section (c)(7).

(U//~~LES~~) DOJ's App. 011-1 further restricts the collection of information regarding First Amendment protected activity; the FBI may only collect information relating to the exercise of a First Amendment right if (1) the collection is logically related to an authorized investigative purpose, (2) the collection does not unduly interfere with the ability of an individual or a group to engage in the exercise of constitutionally-recognized rights, and (3) the method of collection is the least intrusive alternative that is reasonable, based upon the circumstances of the investigation. [REDACTED]

(U//~~LES~~) Within this legal and policy framework, the information requested from field offices in this communication is intended to provide timely information to appropriate law enforcement and/or public safety personnel who are authorized to protect facilities, personnel, and the public from imminent threats of violent and/or criminal activity. This document is meant as a summary of significant investigative highlights and NOT as a comprehensive review of ongoing investigations. The information contained in this communication is NOT to be incorporated into any formal or informal written document nor further disseminated without the authorization of the FBI Headquarters' SICU. Unauthorized use of this information may compromise sensitive national security and/or criminal investigations, result in the possible identification and/or physical harm of human sources or create undue notification into the FBI's interest of intended targets.

(U) This communication is intended to provide timely information to appropriate law enforcement and/or public safety personnel who are authorized to protect facilities, personnel, and the public from imminent threats of violent and/or criminal activity. It is related to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement investigation or investigative activity. Under FBI policy and federal law, no investigative activity may be based solely on First Amendment activity. The FBI does not investigate, collect, or maintain information on U.S. persons solely for the purpose of monitoring activities protected by the First Amendment.

(U) National Crisis Coordination Center (NC3) Executive Summary

(U//~~FOUO~~) THE FBI IN CLOSE COORDINATION WITH ITS FEDERAL, STATE, AND LOCAL PARTNERS, CONTINUES TO MONITOR AND RESPOND TO EVENTS RELATED TO THE VIOLENCE ASSOCIATED WITH LAWFUL PROTESTS.

(U//~~LES~~) With the recent threats and civil disturbance at the United States Capitol targeting members of Congress, state, local, and tribal law enforcement jurisdictions are requested to maintain operational awareness of their respective Congressional Representative's district offices and residences for any types of threats or potential criminal activity.

(U) ELECTORAL CERTIFICATION AND INAUGURATION 2021

- [REDACTED]
- (U//~~LES~~) There are currently 51 identified demonstrations in the National Capitol Region scheduled on or before 20 January, three of which are expected to involve civil disobedience, arrests, and violence, according to the US Capitol Police. [REDACTED]
- (U//~~LES~~) As of 14 January, United States Secret Service (USSS) has developed two plans regarding permitted protest activities during the Presidential Inauguration. Plan A would consist of closing the mall and allowing no protest activity. Plan B would consist of limiting protest activity to a small, designated area between 13th and 14th streets. The gatherings would allow only 25-50 participants to comply with COVID restrictions and would be segregated with avenues for first responders. Open source currently reports the mall will be closed.
- (U//~~FOUO~~) As of 15:11 on 14 January, the National Guard Bureau advised of assets being deployed for local in-state defense in: DC, GA, IL, MA, NJ, NY, PA, SC, TN, TX, VA, WA, and WI. In Washington, DC, there will be nearly 7,000 Guardsmen, and the number will expand above 12,000 by 16 January. Metal anti-scale fencing has been installed around the US Capitol Complex and other areas on Capitol Hill in advance of the Presidential Inauguration.

I cashed it and will leave $13 at your desk this week. That should be applied to the group and not just to me as whatever they refunded came from group payments.

(U//FOUO) The following list of is being maintained per request of WFO Executive Management. The items on this list are compiled by FBI partner agencies. FBI WFO does not have any information to suggest these events will involve anything other than first amendment protected activity and is being distributed for situational awareness. Their inclusion here is not intended to associate the protected activity with criminality or a threat to national security, or to infer that such protected activity itself violates federal law. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] In the event no violent reaction occurs, FBI policy and federal law dictates that no further record be made of the protected activity.

Everyone,

Per SA [REDACTED] presentation today at WFO 4th Quarter Legal, there are still approximately [REDACTED] for Special Agents that need to be filled for Inauguration. Please consider signing up for one of the shifts before people are "designated" to fill the shifts by management. Any of the [REDACTED] shifts that are filled will allow you to earn [REDACTED] of OT on top of your regular pay. Additionally, most of the remaining shifts [REDACTED] which offer a small amount of extra pay. Finally, the actual day of Inauguration has historically been designated a Federal Holiday, and Agents working that day have received Holiday Pay.

Please feel free to reach out to [REDACTED] with any questions.

Everyone,

Please see the forwarded message below from WFO Special Events Coordinator SA [REDACTED]. Please consider signing up for one or more shifts. As detailed below, overtime and holiday pay would be available for several of the shifts. Additionally, if management mandates supervisors assign agents as we get closer to January, this may fall to all of you anyway; better to choose your shift ;)

If you have any questions regarding the assignments or how to sign up, please go direct to [REDACTED]

ATTENTION ALL WFO AGENTS (SSA/SA/TFOs):

The 59th Presidential Inauguration will take place on January 20, 2021 at the U.S. Capitol. In support of this National Special Security Event (NSSE), WFO will be conducting special event related operations from [REDACTED]. In order to fulfill our mission, there are [REDACTED] that need to be staffed by WFO SSA/SA/TFOs. WFO Special Events requests that all shifts be filled by [redacted] in order to meet follow-on requirements for credentialing and access related matters.

All personnel working the event will be required to attend one of the three (3) Operations Briefings, which will be offered [redacted] (time is TBD) in the WFO [redacted] [redacted] or via Microsoft Teams. In addition, all personnel working in support of this NSSE must attend 4 "quarter legal (dates forthcoming).

All available shifts can be found on the UNET WFO Special Events "2021 Presidential Inauguration" SharePoint site located HERE. (Please note, you cannot edit/sign-up for available shifts from your mobile device. You must use a UNET or standalone computer.) Select the appropriate button ("SA/TFO Staffing" or "SSA Staffing") and fill in the required information. (U//FOUO) The following list of events is being maintained per request of WFO Executive Management. The items on this list are compiled by FBI partner agencies. FBI WFO does not have any information to suggest these events will involve anything other than first amendment protected activity and is being distributed for situational awareness. Their inclusion here is not intended to associate the protected activity with criminality or a threat to national security, or to infer that such protected activity itself violates federal law [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] In the event no violent reaction occurs, FBI policy and federal law dictates that no further record be made of the protected activity.

(U//~~FOUO~~) The following list of events is being maintained per request of WFO Executive Management. The items listed are compiled by FBI partner agencies. FBI WFO does not have any information to suggest these events will involve anything other than first amendment protected activity and is being distributed for situational awareness. Their inclusion here is not intended to associate the protected activity with criminality or a threat to national security, or to infer that such protected activity itself violates federal law in the event no violent reaction occurs, FBI policy and federal law dictates that no further record be made of the protected activity.

The following information is current as of 3 January 2021 at 0800. This is for FBI internal use only.

[REDACTED] this is a great roll-up and offers a host of good info from which the ADIC may select to help give FBI EM a good optic into the Jan 6 landscape. Please extend my thanks to the JTTF and Intel folks who worked on this last night and this morning.

Adding the other SACs for visibility.

Sorry for the 11th hour request for some work this evening or first thing in the morning. You'll note below that the ADIC is looking to empower the DD in a Principals' Committee meeting tomorrow afternoon related to Jan 6. Please put your team and [REDACTED] team together to answer the due-outs bulleted below NLT mid-morning tomorrow. Also, please LMK if my memory is correct [REDACTED]

I suggested to Jenn that she and I should let you and [REDACTED] collaborate directly on these due-outs; however, she hasn't yet responded to the ADIC's or my messages just yet. In light of the short deadline, I think you should feel free to go direct with her.

Thanks much--

Hey Jenn and Matt,

Sorry to bother you both on a Saturday night. Hope you both had a nice New Years. I spoke to the Deputy this evening and told him what we had for intel and our plans regarding the 6th. [REDACTED] has called for a Principals Meeting at 1 pm tomorrow. He requested that I get him any updated/additional intel prior to his afternoon meeting tomorrow.
